Company history/background

The company was founded over 100 years ago. It was one of the first companies in the industry to switch to computer-controlled machines, and since then, there has been constant investment in expanding and applying new technologies. The turning shop has now become a fully computer-controlled machine park. The company is ISO-certified by TUV.

A metal turning company specializing in automatic turning. For this purpose, CNC (computer-controlled) automatic lathes are used to process both conventional materials such as brass, aluminum, free-machining steel, and plastics, as well as high-performance materials such as titanium alloys, stainless steel, and other difficult-to-machine metals. The focus is primarily on producing specialized turned parts for a loyal clientele. In addition, the automated series of 'bolts, nuts, bushings, and washers' are also produced.

Unique selling points

The company manufactures on behalf of the client and according to the client drawings provided. They also provide advice during the development phase and the creation of a product or product drawing. Their distinguishing feature within the sector consists – apart from certification and machinery – primarily of long-standing customer relationships and, consequently, the specific products manufactured by each company.

Other

The entrepreneur has reached an age where he wishes to sell the business. As there is no internal succession available from family or employees, an external party is being sought. The seller wishes to sell the entire company (100%). Optionally, the business premises (including the upstairs apartment) can be leased or purchased. This company is of interest to strategic buyers who are able to accurately assess the added value of the activities and integrate them into their own organization. More specifically: parties wishing to strengthen or expand their current comparable activities in the sector in which this company operates. Or for entrepreneurial MBI candidates with knowledge of this sector.
