Company history/background

Experienced specialist in chemistry

Internationally operating company active in the import, processing, and supply of high-quality chemical raw materials. Years of expertise and direct relationships in production and sales markets can be rapidly scaled up as soon as the commercial phase starts.

Proven technology, concrete market demand

The company has previously proven that the intended formulation can be produced (“we've done that before”). The production trial is directly linked to a substantial commercial deal, in which all relevant agreements have been contractually established in advance. Consequently, the technical and commercial risk is expected to be limited.

Unique selling points

Risk mitigation and return

The investment is used for specialized equipment and raw materials; these remain the property and serve as collateral until full repayment. The investor receives interest, principal repayment, and a performance bonus upon successful commercial rollout.
