Company history/background

The entrepreneur has decided to sell the business because he is ready for a new phase and wishes to step back from daily operational activities. The focus is on a careful transfer to a serious party that wants to further develop and grow the company.

The company is a well-organized and profitable finishing and renovation specialist, active in the commercial market and holding a strong position within its current area of operation. Over the years, a solid reputation has been built, supported by long-standing client relationships and a stable order book.

The transfer includes, among other things, goodwill, an established and loyal customer base, ongoing projects, work backlog, inventory, and equipment. In addition, the company has an experienced team of all-round professionals and established partnerships with specialized partners.

Machinery, vehicles, and other business assets are held in a holding company and may, by mutual agreement, be included in the transaction.

This combination makes the company particularly attractive to a buyer who wants to step directly into a solid, well-performing organization with proven results and growth potential.

The company is a finishing and renovation firm focused on the commercial market, with clients such as Owners' Associations, property managers, and investors. The company handles complete projects from A to Z and fully unburdens clients.

In addition, the company is active in the realization of reception locations for refugees for a regular client, which ensures a stable and recurring stream of assignments.

We work with a fixed core of all-round professionals, supplemented by a reliable network of freelance specialists, which makes the organization flexible and scalable.

Thanks to the combination of recurring assignments, a regular client, and an efficient organization, the company offers a solid foundation with attractive growth potential for a new owner.

Unique selling points

The company distinguishes itself through the combination of comprehensive service from A to Z and a flexible, scalable organization with permanent professionals and a reliable network of specialists.

In addition, the company benefits from a stable flow of orders through long-term partnerships, including a regular client for the realization of reception locations. This ensures continuity and predictability in revenue.

The team's versatility, combined with the ability to scale up quickly through established partners, makes the company agile and efficient in execution, resulting in consistent quality.

Other

The entrepreneur is willing to remain involved for a few months after the transfer to ensure a smooth transition and transfer knowledge. In addition, his experienced work planner will join, who is fully familiar with the organization and ongoing projects.

This company is suitable for a buyer with experience in the construction or finishing sector, or for an entrepreneur/investor with technical and organizational insight. The buyer is expected to possess knowledge of project management, team leadership, and commercial acumen. Technical knowledge is a plus, but not a requirement, thanks to the experienced team and the existing structure.
